May 26, 2017 — PORTLAND, OR. Portland Center Stage at The Armory celebrated its 10th anniversary in its home at The Armory with a record-breaking fundraising gala titled “Diamond in the Pearl.” More than 400 of the organization’s most dedicated supporters were in attendance, including many of the people that were instrumental in helping transform The Armory into the LEED-Platinum theater facility that opened its doors in 2006 and is now visited by 150,000 people annually. The guests raised $700,650 to support Portland Center Stage at The Armory’s mission of inspiring our community by bringing stories to life in unexpected ways. It was the most successful fundraiser, and the largest attendance for a gala, in the company’s history.

Artistic Director Chris Coleman kicked off the evening’s entertainment by surprising guests with his own rendition of a song from West Side Story, which was the very first production presented by Portland Center Stage when The Armory opened its doors to the public in 2006. The musical medley continued with performances from Maiesha McQueen (who recently starred in His Eye is on the Sparrow at The Armory), Michael Deleget and Leah Yorkston singing favorites from musicals presented by the company during its 10 years at The Armory. Audiences were also treated to a pre-show cocktail reception backstage featuring pop-up performances that highlighted the company’s behind-the-scenes theater artistry, as well as post-show dancing with music by DJ Eric Wright of All-Wright Music.
