SPEND AN EVENING WITH THE UNFORGETTABLE JAMES BEARD IN

I LOVE TO EAT

STARTING JANUARY 8 AT PORTLAND CENTER STAGE

December 18, 2012 – PORTLAND, ORE. America's original foodie takes center stage at last! Portland Center Stage's production of I Love to Eat, by James Still, begins preview performances on Tuesday, January 8, opens on Friday, January 11 and runs Tuesday through Sunday through February 3, 2013. Tickets start at $39, with discounts available for students and those under 25. Rush tickets are $20.

Before Julia Child, before today's proliferation of cooking shows and networks, there was James Beard, the first TV chef. He brought fine cooking to the small screen in 1946 and helped establish an American cuisine. But, as is often the case with pioneers, his early efforts on screen have been lost. He went on to become America's first "foodie," and the award bearing his name is still the prize most coveted by chefs. Playwright James Still invites you to meet the man described as "the face and belly of American gastronomy" in this play that recreates an evening at Beard's New York home. "This play is really a love story, the story of a man whose joy in life became sharing food in the way it most connects us and brings us together, and teaches us how to respect it as both a pleasure and an art form," says Director Jessica Kubzansky of the iconic Beard.

Show times are 7:30 p.m. Tuesday through Sunday, with 2 p.m. matinees on Sundays and select Saturdays, and matinees at noon on Thursdays. See the show calendar at www.pcs.org/eat for the complete performance schedule. Tickets can be purchased online at www.pcs.org, by phone at 503.445.3700 or by visiting the box office located at 128 NW Eleventh Avenue.

THE GERDING THEATER AT THE ARMORY houses a 599-seat Main Stage and the 200-seat black box Ellyn Bye Studio. It was the first building on the National Register of Historic Places, and the first performing arts venue, to achieve a LEED (Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design) Platinum certification. The Gerding Theater at the Armory opened to the public on October 1, 2006. The capital campaign to fund the renovation of this hub for community artistic activity continues.
